NORTH STATE CAPITAL NEWS

Competition May Come in Fire Insurance Commissions—News of United States Court—Four Pardons Granted Yesterday by Governor Kitchin.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, April 17.—The fire insurance companies doing business in North Carolina have announced an agreement to change the basis of commissions paid to agents in North Carolina from a fifteen per cent. flat rate to a scale of commissions from fifteen to twenty-five per cent. according to risk, this to be effective May 1, but the State Commissioner of Insurance, James R. Young, announced today a ruling that under section 3491 of the 1905 Revisal the regulation under which this change is promulgated is illegal and inoperative in this State, in that the section cited makes it unlawful for any fire insurance company to exact an agreement from an agent that he will not accept an agreement with any other company for a different basis of compensation. It is believed here that the effect of the ruling will be to bring about a general shifting and competition in the basis of fire insurance commissions to agents in this State.

Dr. J. Y. Joyner, state superintendent of public instruction; C. L. Brogden, of the State department of education, and a party of fifteen or twenty prominent educators of this State left today for Jacksonville, Fla., to attend the sessions of the Southern Educational Conference there this week.

The office of the Eastern District United States marshal here is notified by Deputy Marshal Lilly of Newport, Beaufort county, that he has just succeeded in arresting B. F. Sanders, a desperado who has given no end of trouble the past several years by persistent violation of the revenue laws as to blockading, retailing and every other way that he could and has defied officers and gone heavily armed with the declaration that he would never be taken again alive. He has served one term in the penitentiary. Marshal Claudius Dockery is much gratified at having the outlaw in custody again.

The officers of the United States court for the eastern district went today to Washington, N. C., to hold a term of court there this week. It is expected that the business of the court will hardly require the entire week.

The United States court room in the government building here is being put in order for the May term of court, this being the rounding up of a complete overhauling of the building the past year. Three handsome combination chandeliers for electricity and gas are being installed with very handsome standard lights on either end of the judge's desk and drop lights for the clerk and other officers.

Capt. Morphis, regimental commissary for the Third regiment, arrived today from Reidsville to prepare for the coming of the rifle range teams to represent the various companies of the regiment in the competitive shoot to be held here Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. There will be a squad of riflemen here from each of the fourteen companies in the regiment. Interest in the contest is very great.

Governor Kitchin spent today at Smithfield where he delivered an educational address. He returned to the city tonight.

Four conditional pardons and three commutations were announced today by Governor Kitchin. Tom Simmons, serving seven years in Buncombe county for manslaughter is pardoned on the recommendation of three physicians who say the prisoner is in the last stages of tuberculosis and has grown steadily worse since his imprisonment a year ago, the judge, the solicitor, the attorney general and others also joining in recommendations for the pardon.

J. W. Carlton, who has served nine of a twelve months sentence in Durham county for buying stolen goods knowing them to have been stolen, is pardoned because of serious physical condition through ravages of sciatica, court and county officers joining in application for the pardon.

Jesse Barlow and J. R. Hyman, of Martin county, are pardoned from respectively two and four years sentence in the penitentiary for burning a storehouse, twelve months of the sentences having been served to date. The evidence is stated to have been circumstantial as to burning a barber shop, a twelve-year-old negro boy swearing that he heard the two plotting to burn the place. Evidence now before the Governor is that one of the two prisoners was not even in the county at the time the plotting was sworn to have been done. Even the attorney employed by the State Department of Insurance to prosecute the prisoners now recommends the pardons.

Of the two commutations, Lee Wadford, a sixteen-year-old boy has his sentence of one to three years on Wake county roads for stealing $10 from his sister commuted to eight months at the instance of all parties concerned on the ground that the ends of justice will be met in this way. The other commutation is for Henry Logan serving three months on the roads in Stanly county for carrying a concealed weapon, the condition being the payment of a fine of $10 and costs. He is represented to the Governor as having aided in breaking up a number of blind tigers, the chief of police and attorney for the town of Albemarle both recommending this course.

WAKE FOREST WINNER OF THE LOVING CUP

Last of Series of Three Contests Decided Permanent Ownership of Chamber of the Commerce Trophy---Debate Spectacular Affair and Drew a Large Crowd.

By a vote of two to one the judges of last night's debate decided in favor of the affirmative and Wake Forest will hold permanently the loving cup offered by the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce to the side winning two out of a series of three debates. The query was "Resolved, That the United States should fortify the Panama Canal," Messrs. J. Ben Eller and S. C. Hilliard, of Wake Forest speaking in the affirmative, while James Allan, Jr., and M. S. Huske, of Davidson, uphold the negative. The judges were Dr. Howard Rondthaler, of Salem; Dr. M. M. Kinard, of Salisbury, and Rev. Thos. G. Faulkner, of Greensboro. The former voted for the negative and the two latter for the affirmative.

The debate was held in the opera house and every seat was filled when R. C. Hood, president of the Chamber of Commerce, opened the debate and introduced the first speaker. He announced that according to the rules of the debate the judges were to consider the argument and not the merit of the question debated. The Proximity band furnished music for the occasion. Presbyterians and Baptists were present in large numbers and the applause was liberal at the conclusion of each argument.

The opera house was decorated with the colors of the two colleges the gold and black of Wake Forest being intermingled with the white and light blue of Davidson.

The managers of the debate were J. Powell Tucker, of Wake Forest, and Maxey H. Carr, of Davidson. The marshals were: Wake Forest—T. A. Haywood, A. J. Harris, Jr., O. W. Sawyer, H. J. Langston; Davidson—H. N. McDiarmidt, G. W. Mackey, E. S. Currie, M. H. Carr.

The synopsis of the arguments follow:

J. B. Eller Opened For Affirmative.

The debate was opened by J. B. Eller of Wake Forest, who argued for the affirmative side of the question under discussion. He said:

"The story of the isthmian canal fills one of the most romantic pages of all history. No single project in the field of public work has been prosecuted by civilized man through so long and tempestuous a period of preparation. Many private attempts to build such a waterway have utterly failed. In 1910, however, the United States after the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty secured sovereignty over the canal zone from the Republic of Panama, and began work in earnest. We are now spending $400,000,000 in digging the canal. The real question for discussion is: should this our priceless achievement, this monument to our national sacrifice, this most liberal contribution to the progress of man in all ages—should it be left defenseless and helpless? We answer emphatically, no. In support of this position I will advance three propositions.

"In the first place, we have the legal and moral right to fortify the canal. The second Hay-Pauncefote treaty—the one now in force—abrogates the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, does not forbid fortifications, and gives us the right to protect the canal. Our treaty with the Republic of Panama expressly declares that the 'the United States shall have the right at all times, and in its descretion, to erect fortifications.' There, our legal right is unquestionable.

"Again, all nations have the moral right to protect their own property. The canal is ours. It is a continuation of our coast line. The canal zone has been granted to us in perpetuity; we hold absolute sovereignty over it. This being true the possibility of war makes it a duty to be ready for self-preservation. Every practical legislative mind knows that war is still incident to the life of every sovereign people. Universal peace so far is a delusion. In the last twelve years there have been three wars of international importance. Our future is unknown. We have at last met the world on the Pacific, and the question of the "Far East" bristles with a thousand possibilities. Turning southward we can already hear the echoes of war rolling across the canal itself. Hence, the United States has unquestionably a moral right to fortify the canal.

"The second proposition is, that the policy of fortification is warranted. In the first place to protect it by international agreement would endanger the 'Monroe Doctrine.' This 'Doctrine' has been one of self-preservation—the bulwark of our nation's existence, and reason condemns a policy that would abrogate it. Again, an unfortified canal could be easily commanded by European powers as they hold positions in the Caribbean Sea. Furthermore, the canal will bring Asiatic powers 14,000 miles nearer our Atlantic seaboard, and Europe that much nearer our Pacific coast. Therefore, the policy is doubly warranted.

"In the third place, the strategic value of the canal as a military asset makes fortifications necessary and imperative. To begin with our purpose in building the canal was decisively military. Not to fortify the canal is to surrender the very purpose of its construction. Again, fortifications will double the efficiency of our navy because we must either fortify it so our fleet can pass through safely doing service in both oceans or place an extra fleet on the Pacific. Finally, fortifications will be a wise military move for our complete national defense. With our possessions and twelve thousand miles of seacoast at home, this problem is no idle dream. Cognizant of this fact Congress has almost unanimously voted to fortify the canal. If fortifications are wrong, then President Taft, the national legislators and the leading military experts of the United States are deliberately misleading our people. Such a thing is preposterous. Therefore, fortifications must be a military necessity.

"In conclusion, a fortified canal will be at once a boon to mankind, and the main stay of our national defense. It will insure our continual supremacy of the Western Hemisphere; guard the on-WAKE FOREST—GAL 2 ..* ......* ward sweep of American ideas in the civilization of the twentieth century, and add another star to the already radiant galaxy of our unselfish triumphs for the world and humanity."

S. C. Hilliard's Speech For the Affirmative.

In defending the affirmative, S. C. Hilliard purposed to deal with the international phase of the question, and presented the following:

"First, that international neutralization is incompatible with our exclusive control and is wholly unreliable.

"Second, that fortifications are necessary to enforce our neutrality obligations and at the same time to secure to the United States the military advantages of the canal.

"Third, that fortifications are not out of harmony with the Peace movement, but will rather serve as a guarantee of Peace."

In considering the first proposition he condemned international protection by recalling the demands of the "Monroe Doctrine," and further stating the singular disregard by the nations of the invitations extended to them to become parties of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. He showed its inadequacy by citing the Russo-Japanese war which was fought on neutralized territory unprotested. The practical annexation of Korea by Japan; the violation of the neutrality principle by Austria-Hungary in seizing Bosuia and Herz-govina; and Bulgaria's annexation of Rumelia, all, he declared had been violations of the treaty agreement and yet the world had taken scarcely any account of them.

"Switzerland and Belgium are," he continued, "said to be protected by international neutralization, but so great is their fear under such protection that they maintain the largest standing armies pro rata of all other nations. In short, such agreements are kept until convenient to break them, as was the case of England and France in 1884 con-

MAYOR OF DOUGLAS WIRES PRESIDENT FOR PROTECTION

City in State of Siege as Result of Battle--Rebels Still Hold Agua Prieta.

By Publishers' Press.

Douglas, Arizona, April 17.—The battle of Agua Prieta raged from shortly after daylight until darkness put an end to the encounter for the day. The fighting will be resumed tomorrow. Despite the warning from the United States government the fighters placed this city in a state of siege, bullets falling like hail in the streets and penetrating through wooden houses. Six persons were wounded. The customs house, office buildings and many residences were under fire all day and during the thickest of the fighting had to be deserted by the occupants.

Alarmed by the casualties in the streets today and the danger in which all residents were placed Major Mequer tonight sent the following message to President Taft: "Six persons were shot in Douglas today during the battle at Agua Prieta between the Mexican federals and the insurrectos. The battle is still raging and the worst is yet to come. Bullets are falling all over the city. Cannot something be done for our protection?"

The Federals Repulsed.

By Publishers' Press.

Douglas, Arizona, April 17.—The federals under command of Col. Reynold Diaz, a nephew of President Diaz, were repulsed today in a battle fought in an effort to retake Agua Prieta. They retreated this evening toward the foothills.

The insurrectos captured one rapid fire gun and one field piece during the fight. Reports indicate that the federal losses were heavy. The rapid fire guns were silenced several times during the battle by sharpshooters.

On the federal side sixteen hundred men were engaged and they fought furiously. Their machine guns sent showers of bullets into this place. Three Americans were shot. Oscar H. Goll, a newspaper man of Tobstone, Ariz., received a scalp wound; John Hamilton of Naco, Ariz., was struck in the breast by a bullet while walking on the streets here.

After being repulsed in the first assault the federals retired just before noon. The insurrectos, one hundred strong, retired and threw up new intrenchments near the American border, but the main army was not forced to fall back.

Twenty dead insurrectos from the advance lines were brought into Agua Prieta. Insurrectos from the front reported that the federal losses were severe.

Rebels Say They Will Hold Agua Prieta.

By Publishers' Press.

Agua Prieta, April 17.—Red Lopez, one of the rebel chiefs who commanded the garrison of the town, captured one of the machine guns of the federals. Lopez said tonight: "We concentrated the fire of our sharpshooters on the two machine guns the federals brought into action. Our men are holding every position taken by them so far and have repulsed the right wing of the federal army, which attempted to swing toward the American border. We are going to hold Agua Prieta."

Juan Cabral in command of 2,500 insurrectos is expected to arrive to relieve the garrison late tonight.

Awaiting Instructions From Congress.

Washington, April 17.—Secretary of War Dickinson stated tonight that under no circumstances will American troops cross the border into Mexico without the authorization of Congress.

DECISIONS ARE EXPECTED SOON

Corporation Commissioners Have Returned to Raleigh and Decrees in Pending Cases are Expected—Railroad, Steamboat and Telephone Cases Pending.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, April 17.—Now that all three of the North Carolina Corporation Commissioners are in the office here again after two weeks absence in the west, final decrees may be confidently expected within the next few days in a number of important cases that have been pending for some time, with impatience developing in a number of quarters at the long, drawn-out hold-up of the rulings.

One of the first rulings that may be expected is in the Goldsboro-Wilmington case in which people of that territory have petitioned for the Atlantic Coast Line to be required to extend the run of the Norfolk-Goldsboro shoo-fly on to Wilmington, giving an early morning train out of Wilmington and a return train about midnight. There is a possibility that the commission may compromise on a local Wilmington to Goldsboro shoo-fly without northern or eastern connections. The railroad company is opposing any change of the present service.

Another important case awaiting decision is the petition of Eastern Carolina steamboat lines and shippers against the practice recently inaugurated by the Norfolk & Southern and Atlantic Coast Line of charging a 25 cents per ton wharfage fee for all freight brought from Norfolk by boats and delivered at the railroad wharves for inland shipment by rail. The petitioners claim that the fee is charged to fight water competition in freight rates.

Then there is the telephone case from Asheboro in which it is sought by petitioners to have the commission require the Southern Bell and the Asheboro Telephone Company (Independent) to arrange for connections of the Bell long distance lines into Asheboro and the Independent local exchange stations of the Asheboro Telephone Company. The Bell insists that the commission hasn't the power and that if it did it would mean that the commission could compel such connections with independent companies in towns where the Bell has a competing local exchange. All parties admit the right of the two telephone companies to enter into an agreement voluntarily but the Bell Company denies the power of the commission to compel such alliance. And negotiations for mutual agreement have failed.

No Trace of the Body of the Late Dr. McNeely DuBose.

Morganton, April 16.—Though searching parties have continued unremittingly their efforts, no trace was found today of the body of Rev. Dr. McNeely DuBose, the Episcopal clergyman, who was accidentally drowned in the Catawba river near this town Saturday morning. The river, swollen by recent heavy rains, is still a raging torrent and it is possible that the body may have been swept down the stream many miles distant from the scene of the accident. All Morganton is shrouded in gloom today over the sudden and tragic death of this good man, and Easter, ordinarily a festival of gladness, was turned into a day of mourning here.

Taft Awaits Official Report.

Washington, April 17.—President Taft is awaiting the official report of the battle at Agua Preita today. But little news has been received here this afternoon. Wires were busy during the forenoon with reports that the Chihuahua railroad communication had been cut off. Communication has also been cut off between important places in the states of Durango, Coahuila and Zacatecas. It is reported that the revolution is spreading in central Mexico.

The destruction of several million bottles of champagne in France is adding considerably to the gaiety of that country, but the gaiety of other nations is being given a setback thereby. The other countries would be gayer if they were allowed to drink the champagne.

Those South Carolinians ought to have the Scriptures placed where they cannot be overlooked. However, it would probably be advisable to give them a chapter every day for some length of time.

The town of Hendersonville is agitating the matter of employing a business manager to attend to the business affairs of the place. The plan is a modified form of commission government, under which the mayor and aldermen serve without pay and the business manager has charge of all the departments of the government and really performs all the work. The council, under this plan, passes ordinances, or legislates for the municipality, and the business manager attends to the execution of these mandates and directs all the affairs of the place. The general manager system has been tried for several years, it is said, in Staunton, Va., and has scored a remarkable success.

ONLY RICH MEN FOR AMBASSADORS.

The statement is made on reliable authority and is current in Washington City, it is said, that the chief reason for the resignation of Ambassador David Jayne Hill was the fact that his income from his private fortune was not large enough to enable him to continue to live in Berlin in the style which is requisite for the representative of the United States at the court of the Kaiser. It is said that Dr. Hill's private income amounts to but $12,000 per year. This added to his salary as minister to Germany afforded an income of $29,500 per year, and this is altogether insufficient, to maintain the station of ambassador in Berlin. The Philadelphia Press says of the resignation of Dr. Hill and its probable cause:

"The Democratic simplicity of Dr. and Mrs. Hill, the absence of a fortune and the fact that their social prestige must be limited occasioned much comment in Berlin at the time of Dr. Hill's selection. The upper circles of German society took delight in comparing the plain methods of the Hills with the lavish entertainments of the former Ambassador Tower, whom Berlin desired should retain the post. The Towers spent enormous sums. They equipped several castles along the Rhine. Their servants numbered 750."

The reason given for Dr. Hill's resignation may be wide of the mark, of course, but apparently there is no other good reason assignable, in the absence of any explanation from the former Ambassador to Germany; and if it transpires that Dr. Hill was forced to leave Berlin on account of German criticism of his poverty and plain living, the fact will cause the plain people of the United States to do some serious thinking. This government was founded as the government of the plain people, and while it has to a considerable extent departed from the ways of its founders, the masses of the citizens of the United States will deeply regret to learn that money has come to be the measure of a man's fitness to represent his country at the courts of foreign countries.

The salary of the Ambassador to Germany ought to be large enough to enable him to live in comfort in Berlin, and it ought not to be necessary for him to spend his private fortune to maintain the reputation of his country there. This is true of our representatives to all foreign courts or countries. The people of this country ought not to be taxed to maintain an Ambassador and 750 servants in Germany. Furthermore, no minister to Berlin should be allowed by his government to live in any such extravagant style. The precedent is bad, just as is seen in the case of Ambassador Tower and Ambassador Hill. The former, being very wealthy and having the disposition to spend his money freely, established a pace which his comparatively poor successor could not maintain, and as a result the German nobility is scandalized at the spectacle of the United States being represented at their court by a minister who is not able to purchase castles on the Rhine and maintain a retinue of 750 servants.

Our ministers to foreign countries should be plain men. Men of that stamp will confer the greatest honor on the country which is yet, despite its shortcomings, the country of the plain people; and they will in nine cases out of ten render the best and most acceptable service—to their plain fellow citizens at home, at least. No rich man should be sent abroad as minister. Let plain men be given these stations; men who are not sensitive to criticism of their plainness and their poverty, men who will be glad to live in Berlin on the salary of $17,500 per year allowed to the minister to that country; and if it is found necessary to select a rich man for one of these stations, limit his expenditures to his salary.

The government of the plain people, founded on the principle that all men are born free and are on a plane of equality in the sight of the Almighty and before the laws of this land, should be represented in Berlin and in every other foreign country by men who believes in the traditions of their country, who love the principles upon which it is founded and who stand squarely for the policies which have made it great.

If plain men, unostentatious in their manner of living, and unwilling to furnish castles (even if they can afford to do so) and employ an army of servants to man them, do not please the royalty and nobility of foreign countries, let them be recalled and this country remain without representation at these courts.

This country is fast enough breaking away from the tenets of its founders and from the principles which have made it prosperous and its people great, and happy. It is time to call a halt all along the line, and a beginning may well be made by calling a halt to the extravagance of our foreign ministers and by freeing them and the country of the notion that rich men only must be selected for foreign ambassadorships.

Let the country of plain people have plain men as its foreign representatives and let them live in the plain way which becomes an American citizen—a man who, if he measures up to the possibilities of his citizenship, needs none of the pomp or trappings of royalty or nobility to place him, in the scale of manhood, above all the weaklings who ever wore a crown and all the puppets whose heads ever wagged at the behest of the hand holding a sceptre.

Three Jefferson Day Speeches.

Three notable Jefferson Day speeches were reported in the newspapers yesterday. They were delivered, one by Gov. Woodrow Wilson at Indianapolis, one by Speaker Champ Clark at Washington, and the third by President J. G. Schurman, of Cornell, at the University of Virginia. If the spirit of Jefferson was cognizant of what was being said in his honor, he might have addressed himself to President Schurman somewhat in the language in which the spirit spoke to the seven sons of Sceva—"Clark I know, and Wilson I know but who are you?"

Professor Schurman gave it as his opinion that if Jefferson were with us here today he might insist on a strong and active central government for the protection of the rights and interests of the general public against the aggressions of consolidated capital and united management. What a singular conception of the character and wisdom of the founder of Democracy!

Since the 19th day of April, 1861, now fifty years ago, we have had just the kind of government that the learned Doctor Schurman mentioned—that is to say, a strong and active central government. And under that government the system of consolidated capital and united management has grown up and been fostered by it. Nothing would have been more absolutely abhorrent to all of Jefferson's ideals than the system of special privilege and the fostering of monopoly by the tariff wall which the strong and active central government has erected. It is a singular proposition that in the face of fifty years of the failure of a strong and active central government to remedy the wrongs of which the country has complained there should be advocates for the increase of those powers which have been misused and abused.

It has been proposed by Mr. Roosevelt and other statesmen to so interpret the inter-State commerce clause of the Constitution as to give Congress the power to regulate the labor in factories, to virtually regulate their output and to seize almost every function of the State Legislatures. In the matter of commerce, Mr. Jefferson said, "the merchants will manage the better the more they are left free to manage themselves."

Governor Wilson spoke along a different line. He described the spirit of Jeffersonian Democracy as an "energy of life dwelling in the rank and file." It means government by the people, and government by the people means local self-government. Government by a strong central power a thousand or more miles away is in fact, if not in name, an imperial government.

Speaker Clark described Jefferson as the scholar and philosopher in politics. The principles of government and of human rights that he laid down are eternal. They serve for a guide today as they did a century ago, and whenever the Democratic party has departed from them it has erred. President Schurman is vastly mistaken if he supposes that Jefferson would ever under any conceivable circumstances have advocated or countenanced an imperial government.—Baltimore Sun.

SPARTANBURG HAS GOOD TEAM.

Barring Accident and Mishap Billy Laval's Team Should Finish Well This Season, Thinks a Spartanburg Dope Writer.

(By J. STUART PRICE.)

Spartanburg, S. C., April 16.—With even luck, that is if nothing unforeseen happens in the way of serious injuries to the players, Spartanburg should have a winning team this year.

After mature thought it is safe to predict that the team will finish above the .500 per cent mark, and should have a look-in for the pennant. Of course buntings are not won on paper, and nothing but actual contests on the diamond will decide it, but when the relative merits of Laval's men are taken into consideration, it can be seen that the fans of Spartanburg have a thorough right to be jubilent over the prospects.

Perhaps one of the best evidences of the strength of the team was the splendid showing made in five exhibition games with big teams. Four of these games were defeated, but the locals lost by a very narrow margin. One game was a tie. In these games the players hit the ball and hit it hard, batting too against some of the best pitchers in the country.

There is hardly any question but what Spartanburg will have one of the best infields in the league. Of course the writer has not seen the other infields in work, but they can hardly beat the Musicians' inner work. While Laval has never played first base before, still he is a heady little ball player, and where he may lack in brawn he will make up in brains. On second McDuff will easily outclass all others in fielding and should hit well too. At short will probably be "Kid" Wetterer, of Cincinnati. This boy handles himself very much like Tommy McMillan, formerly of Brooklyn and Cincinnati, but now of Rochester. He is fast as a streak in running bases; fields beautifully, has a true throwing arm, and last but not least he hits the ball. He will no doubt rank as one of the best short stops in the league. At third will be "Boots" Williams. Last year "Boots" played in hard-luck with Charlotte, but this season he is in grand form. He looks so good till the Buffalo club of the Eastern league have paid $1,000 for him, and wanted him this year, but after some persuasion he was permitted to stay.

In the outfield will be Bob Walker in left. He is one of the steadiest men in the league and should play even better ball this year than he did in 1910. He is a brilliant fielder, has a remarkable throwing arm, fast on the bases and a good hitter. Wofford will in all probability stick in centerfield. Outfield work is entirely new to him, but he is improving and should develop into a good man. His hitting makes him very valuable to the club. In rightfield will probably be McCraney, secured from the Columbus club of the South Atlantic league. This man is very speedy on the bases and a fast fielder. He can clout the ball too.

For catchers the team has two on hand now. They are Westlake and Moors. They both may be carried, or one will be released and the other made to do all the catching, with Outfielder McCraney to relieve him in case of injury. Westlake and Moore are both good men.

Spartanburg should have the best balanced pitching staff in the league. Laval is figuring now on carrying five pitchers, and one catcher. Of this bunch he will carry one left-hander and four right handers, or two left-handers and three rights. Of the left-handers experience favors Vickery, but with the class shown by Lyons and Jameson, Vickery will have to hustle to hold his job. The right-handers are: Hill, Jones, Smith, Myers, Tate and Landford. Vickery and Landford are too well known to need introduction. If Landford's injured foot will stand the strain he can be counted on as one of the regulars on the right-handers row, while the other men will fight it out. Manager Laval seems up a tree about his pitchers, and will not make his selection until the day before the season begins.

The prospect certainly looks bright for Spartanburg in 1911.—Greenville Piedmont.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Illegible Coin Inscriptions.

Lying on the table in front of a numismatist was an old copper coin. It had experienced hard usage.

"Can you read the date and the inscription?" inquired the collector.

The visitor inspected the specimen; but, although he had the aid of a magnifying glass, he confessed that the words and figures were illegible.

"Let me assist you," the collector remarked. Going to the kitchen range, he thrust an ordinary coal shovel into the fire and permitted it to remain there until red hot. Withdrawing it, he dropped the coin on the utensil, and it speedily became as red hot as the shovel itself. Immediately the date, 1794, shone brightly in glowing figures on the obverse side of the coin, and similar treatment revealed the words "United States of America, One Cent," on the reverse. This test, according to the numismatist, seldom fails with any coin even when the inscriptions have been worn so perfectly smooth that they are invisible to the naked eye.—New York Press.

ITCHING IRRITATION.

Worst Form of Skin Trouble Quickly Cured by Inexpensive Treatment.

When you suffer with any skin trouble, even though the itching seems unbearable, do not think that it is necessary to use some disgusting greasy ointment. Try Hokara, a pure and simple skin food, that is guaranteed to contain no grease or acids and which is so cleanly it does not soil the linen.

Not only are minor skin troubles like pimples, blackheads, acne, barber's itch, etc., quickly cured, but the worst ulcers or cases of salt rheum or eczema are cleansed and healed by this wonderful skin food.

In order that any one may try Hokara at small expense Howard Gardner is selling a liberal sized jar at 25c and in addition guarantees to refund the money if the treatment does not do all that is claimed for it. Larger size 50 cents.

TESTIMONIAL.

I wish to state for the benefit of anyone suffering from eczema, that I had eczema on my hand for some time and could find nothing that would cure it until I used Hokara. One 25c jar entirely cured me. Wm. Nichols, 621 1-2 Central Ave., Ft. Dodge, Iowa.

An Authority.

Peter McArthur was once talking with a friend when he quoted another man as a financial authority. His friend disputed the right of the person quoted to be considered an expert. Mr. McArthur insisted that the man had a right to speak like an oracle.

"What is your definition of an authority?" asked his friend.

"My idea of an authority," retorted Mr. McArthur, "is a person who bluffs beyond my limit."

Relics of the Incas.

The Inca period has left us remarkable traces, especially in the magnificent roads. Broad, beautiful turnpikes, now only partially preserved, run for a distance of over 2,000 miles from the coast to the plateau and the foot of the highest peaks. We marvel at the skill of the Inca engineers, especially in the magnificent stairways hewn in the rock, in the filling up of deep ravines, in the paving with ponderous flags. In several places have been found the remains of a former asphalt covering to these roads. At certain intervals are found the ruins of custom houses and laid out grounds and fortifications, of which the most interesting specimen is the fortress of Cuzco, built about the year 1000, and plundered and destroyed by Pizarro in 1543.—Century Path.

SAVED SELF AND DAUGHTER

Mattoon, Ill.—"Will you allow me for the benefit of others who may be in the same condition as I was to make a statement in this paper.

"I was in very poor health for years, was weak, ailing, and all run-down, and had lost in weight until I only weighed ninety pounds. I had been under a physician's care, without any benefit, for so long I was discouraged.

About a year ago I decided to try a tonic called Vinol, concerning which I had heard many favorable reports. I commenced to gain, and increased in weight until I now weigh 127 pounds, am in perfect health—and never felt better in my life.

Then, my daughter who lived in Martinsville, Ind., was an invalid, and no encouragement was held out for her recovery. After my experience with Vinol, we went to Martinsville and brought her to Mattoon, as she was helpless. When we got her here I put her on Vinol, with the same good results from it's use which I had—she gained in weight, and today she is well and strong and feels better than she ever did in her life." Mrs. O. M. Watrous. (We guarantee this letter is genuine.)

We have for years recommended Vinol as a grand tonic and body-builder, and every year we gain more and more faith in its wonderful virtues. It is certainly the best and simplest tonic restorative we know of. Fariss-Klutz Drug Co., Greensboro, N. C.

The Word Vaudeville.

The word "vaudeville" sprang from Vaux de Vire, the name of a hamlet in the picturesque town of Vire, in Switzerland. In the fifteenth century this town was the home of Oliver Basselin, the author of witty drinking songs. One of the best known of these songs was a merry dissertation on the author's red nose.

Making an Easter Bird.

An Easter bird may be made of eggshells, sealing wax, burned matches, tallow and paint. He is a beauty if made correctly. See whether you can fashion him without further instructions. He can be fastened to cloth to be used as a penwiper or he can be glued to a box and merely used as an Easter ornament.

Signs of Easter.

If you read these learned maxims and take note of each small thing you may come to be a prophet and foretell the gladsome spring. When trees begin to blossom and the violets to bloom, when the bullfrogs in the meadow warble boom-ah-boom-ah-boom, when ducks are flying northward and bright butterflies are out and robins go housekeeping in the broken water spout, when grasshoppers are hopping and black bats come out at night and venture in your bedroom attracted by the light, when birds fly down the chimney and hens walk in the door and beetles hold conventions in the center of the floor, when the mud is o'er your shoe tops as you cross the new plowed land, you may count on it as certain that sweet Easter is near at hand.

When He Was Bad.

It has been said that you never know a man till you travel with him, and certainly traveling has a tendency to bring out all the depravity innate in human nature. Out of this test, however, Benjamin Disraeli emerged with flying colors. This is what was said of him by Mrs. Austen, who with her husband traveled with him when he was quite a young man, as related in Mr. Monypenny's biography:

"Your brother," she says (the letter was addressed to Disraeli's sister), "is so easily pleased, so accommodating, so amusing and so actively kind that I shall always reflect upon the domestic part of our journey with the greatest pleasure. Your brother has behaved excellently, except when there is a button, or, rather, buttons, to be put on his shirt; then he is violently bad, and this happens almost daily."

The Woman Question.

Tommy—Pa! Pa—Well, what is it now? Tommy—What's "the woman question?" Pa—Did you mail that letter?—Toledo Blade.

SHE'LL ADVISE NO MORE.

Mrs. Woodward Held Odd Chair at University of Wisconsin.

Mrs. Cora Stranahan Woodward, adviser of women at the University of Wisconsin for the past five years, has given her resignation to the regents on account of poor health. It has been accepted.

Mrs. Woodward was appointed to the position of adviser of women in 1906, when the place was created. On account of ill health Mrs. Woodward was given a leave of absence before and after the last Christmas recess. Her successor has not been chosen, and the place will probably not be filled during the remainder of this college year.

Think Girls Should Pay.

The question whether girls should not bear their share of car fares, theater and other affairs which they enjoy in company with escorts is being discussed. One bachelor insists women should pay their share, and he puts forth this compliment somewhat ungallantly: "I do not think a man should pay double the share of an outing or else be doomed to loneliness when the girl in whose company he wishes to pass a few hours probably has more money than himself. Women nowadays can earn more money than they did formerly. I am sure there must be many girls who would enjoy going out with a man to a theater and be willing to pay their own share rather than depend entirely on the courtesy of the man. As it is, a man hates even the idea of a girl paying her car fare. Of course many men are sensitive about even letting a girl know they are not prosperous. I am sure it would be an excellent custom to have women share the cost of such entertainments with their escorts."

Bowling Good For Women.

Mrs. Nellie Benson Lester is the champion woman bowler of the world and declares that is the best exercise for women. She claims it is a cure for nervous trouble, as it brings every muscle of the body into play and as an all round sport if practiced sensibly is the best pleasure and recreation for women. Three times a week is as often as any woman should bowl.

Woman Motor Inventor.

Miss Sheila O'Neill has patented several inventions for motors. She was the only woman allowed to drive a motor in the Irish reliability motor trials. She was a nurse during the Boer war.

Easter In London.

There is a very old school for boys in London, called Christ's Hospital. Its pupils still follow an ancient custom. On the day after Easter they march to the house of the lord mayor, who is awaiting them behind a long table on which are several piles of money. Each Grecian, a student of the highest rank, receives a sovereign. The others are rewarded with coins of lesser value, according to their standing. Then each boy is given a glass of lemonade and two buns, and back they all march to school again as happy as can be.

REDFERN Demonstration All This Week!

Correct Corsetting by a professional corsetierre, is the feature of our Corset Shop News. The professional comes from the chief designing rooms where the are conceived, designed and executed. She will confer with you regarding the modeling of your figure to the season's requirements, and the merits of the REDFERN which, in our humble opinion, is not equaled in the Corset world.

The Change Corsetically this season is apparently slight, but it is most important. The length of the corset is unchanged, a trifle lower in the bust—the hip line and waist curve must be most exact—accuracy in shaping is due in a degree to proper adjusting.

THE REDFERN is a genuine Whalebone Corset. This is a good deal to say in these days when whalebone is high and scarce at that, and, what is more when substitutes are no rarity, the corset boned with a substitute claiming to be just as good as a pure whalebone corset, which is impossible, as whalebone is unequaled for its resiliency and shaping power—no substitute has ever taken its place.

EASTER EGG HUNT.

Little Miss Winnie Davis entertained about thirty of her little friends at an Easter egg hunt yesterday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Davis, on Walker avenue. Numerous beautifully colored eggs were hidden in many places and the little ones had great sport in finding them. Dorothy Lincoln found the little chick, safely hidden in its nest. After the egg hunt games were enjoyed by the children for some time.

Your comfort don't consider,

Doubt not their word is true.
Take everything as gospel
They pass around to you.
Let doctors and professors

Conform, conform, conform.

This plan will bring you comfort

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

Women and Society

MEN'S LITTLE WAYS

(By JOHN WATSON WHYTE.)

I have heard that every woman is as full of tricks as a barrel of monkeys; and I have heard wise men declare that they gave up trying to understand woman years and years ago.

There are quite a lot of little ways of women that men never will or can ever understand.

For instance, we can never understand why women will gaze for hour after hour through the plate glass shop front of the drapers' emporium; and finally, after much cogitation, dash in and buy a dime's worth of ribbon. The average man regards shopping as a nuisance. If his womenfolks are intelligent enough to buy his shirts, ties, socks and other gear, he is quite content to let them do so, and the only buying that he will not trust to his wife is that of his outer suits, his shoes, tobacco and his pipes.

I dare say, ladies, that there are quite a lot of the little ways of men which are quite unexplainable to you.

For instance, you may have wondered why a man who has a little finger ache makes a fuss over it. You know quite well that when he is very ill he is no more trouble than a baby; but if he has a little bit of a cold, a toothache, lumbago, or any of the smaller ills of life, he raises the roof with his complaints.

This arises from the fact that man, from his earliest youth upwards, is always more or less dominated over and nursed by woman.

When a baby is fractious, and wants to be made a lot of by his mother, he at once starts bellowing, whereupon he is nearly always pacified, though sometimes he gets spanked.

When a man is fractious, he starts pulling long faces and nursing his back or his little finger, or whatever pains him. He is not really in great distress. He is merely indicating to his womenfolk that he wants to be petted, and made much of; and you will notice that so soon as you have fixed your sick husband up with a hot drink, a hot water bottle, and have kissed the bald spot on the top of his artful old head, he at once sits up quite cheerfully and demands his pipe, that he may smoke in bed, against all the rules and regulations of the house.

That is just man's artfulness. He learns this game of bluff before he is three weeks old, and he never fails to work it off on too confiding woman, even though he lives to a hundred years.

Another of man's little tricks, which may perhaps have aroused your wonderment, is that of suddenly buying some strange and, by you considered, undesired object.

He always asserts, whatever the object may be, that it is for the house. That is the man's way of bluffing his bad bargain through. It may be a grandfather clock with works, or a model of a railway engine, or a box of ivory chess men with half the pieces broken, or some awful old picture in a battered gold frame, or a whale's tooth. It may be that he will bring home a pile of old electrical apparatus, or a bowl of goldfiesh.

You never know where your man is going to break out in this direction, but you may bet your Sunday hat that whatever he brings home is "for the home," whether you like it or not.

FADS OF FASHIONS

In the spring large black and white checks will be well in the fore.

On evening gowns large pocket bags are of real lace combined with velvet or metallic tissues.

Irish point and Cluny laces combine best with the cotton voiles prepared for children's wear.

On some of the loveliest evening gowns a cord outlines the high waist. This is of gold, silver, copper, or [illegible] with tassled ends.

Borders are one of the chief characteristics of many of the new cotton materials, a number of which are stripped and spotted.

Some of the latest girdles are very wide, six to eight inches in front and three inches less in the back.

Black velvet sashes are considered very stylish, caught with a diamond buckle, using very lightweight velvet

The newest Dutch collar closes in the back and has a five-inch jabot over the front from the neck edge.

White hats are worn for three years, as a sign of mourning, by every grown male Corean after the death of a member of the royal family.

Silks, challies and cottons show a tendency to have supplementary border of a solid tone. An idea of the most novel effects may be gained by mentioning a new tulle of white with a scattered pattern of dull roses and soft green foliage. The border was in Greek key effect and beneath there appeared a band of solid black.

Tucks and frills, shirrings and elaborate embroideries and laces will figure in the pretty profusion that women find so adorable; but, with it all, there will continue a very strict observance of "la lingne," as the French say, and, after all, the line is everything.

Foolhardy Snake Keeper.

The only fatal case of snake bite on record in the London zoological gardens was directly due to the foolishness of the victim. He was in charge of the snakes and, coming in one morning with some friends, began to boast of his power over the creatures and the extent to which they would submit to be played with by one whom they knew. This led to practical experiments. The overconfident keeper took an Indian cobra from its comfortable sleeping place and, declaring he was a snake charmer, proceeded to swing it about his head and play other tricks with it. A native snake charmer would have known there was no more certain way to rouse the snake's temper than this, for the race abhors rough handling or sudden movement of any sort. The result of the exploit was that the keeper was bitten on the nose. He was hurried off to the hospital, but died in a few hours.—London Globe.

The Dreadful Looking Person.

Rodin, the world famous French sculptor, has had a wonderful career, and, like most men who have risen from obscurity to fame, he still preserves much of the simplicity of his early days. One day he was entertaining a few artists, among them a German who had never before visited the sculptor. At dinner they were waited on by a particularly plain looking woman.

"I'm surprised," remarked the German during one of the woman's absences from the room, "that you should have such a very dreadful looking person about you. Why don't you get a nice, good looking young housekeeper?"

There was a sudden ghastly silence. Then Rodin smiled.

"I don't like to be waited on at meals by servants," he explained. "The dreadful looking person is my wife."

"The Texas of Europe."

In the reminiscences of Mrs. T. P. O'Connor, "I Myself," the author tells of her first meeting with Henry James, whom she calls "a sort of Massachusetts Sir Galahad:"

The first time I met him I sat next him at a dinner. I had just come to London, and he asked me if I liked it. I said I hadn't made up my mind, and he said I would—that in London you were allowed every independence of opinion and action, only you must contribute something socially—beauty (and he bowed very courteously to me, and I bowed very prettily to him) or wit or agreeableness—and then London accepted you. I said: "History repeats itself. In Texas, where I was born, they say a man is not asked his nationality, his religion or his politics, but only if he is a good fellow." "Ah," said Mr. James, "then London is the Texas of Europe."

PREDESTINARIANS LOST TO GUILFORD QUAKERS

Davidson Failed to Hold Guilford Down in Eighth Inning With Score Tied---Game Ended 3 to 1.

In a thoroughly exciting game of ball at Cone park yesterday afternoon the Quakers defeated the Presbyterians by the score of three to one. The result was always in doubt and not until the third Davidson man was out in the ninth did the Guilford fans feel thoroughly comfortable. While Shore deliver nine hits he compromised by fanning the same number of men. He fielded his position well and assisted in six putouts. He was given capital support, the only error being an unimportant fumble by Doak in the eighth. The nine hits secured by Davidson were badly scattered. Bailey twirled for Davidson and only four hits were secured by Guilford, three, however, being for two bases, and three coming in the eighth inning. Five errors were made behind him, two counting for as many runs.

Both teams had a large number of rooters on the scene and the cheering was quite spirited. About 1,500 people saw the game, which lasted for one and three-quarter hours. Lucian Smith umpired and while his decisions did not always meet with approval it was evident that he gave the teams about even advantage. In the sixth he called a Davidson runner out at home when many declared that he was safe. In the same inning he called Stewart out for leaving third sack before a fly had been caught from center. There seemed to be some question as to whether Stewart really left third too soon or not.

Guilford made her first run in the sixth. Moore walked. Shore sacrificed him to second and he went third on Stewart's two-bagger, the first hit for the Quakers. Thompson was safe on fielder's choice and Moore scored on error of catcher. Thompson steals second. Doak hits a pop fly to catcher, who muffs it, Doak being safe. Benbow flies out to center and Stewart is out for leaving third before the ball was caught.

Davidson's lone run came in the seventh. Tabor out first to second. Boswell gets a single as does Matheson, Baswell going to third. He scores on a passed ball, Matheson reaching second. Bailey fans. Graham walks. Klutz out short to first.

Guilford's last run came in the eighth. Moore flies out to center. Shore singles. Stewart follows with one good for two sacks. Thompson fans. Doak follows with a two sacker, scoring Shore, and Stewart scores on error of catcher who allows the throw in to roll to the grandstand. Benbow fans.

The Sound Sleep of Good Health.

Can not be over estimated and any ailment that prevents it is a menace to health. J. L. Southers, Eau Claire, Wis., says: "I have been unable to sleep soundly nights, because of pains across my back and soreness of my kidneys. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was much run down. I have been taking Foley Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock, my general condition is greatly improved, and I know that Foley Kidney Pills have cured me." Howard Gardner.

A Reliable Medicine—Not A Narcotic

Mrs. F. Marti, St. Joe., Mich., says: "Our little boy contracted a severe bronchial trouble and as the doctor's medicine did not cure him, I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar Compound in which I have great faith. It cured the cough as well as the choking and gagging spells and he got well in a short time. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has many times saved us much trouble and we are never without it in the house." Howard Gardner.

GREAT PARADE OF 18,000 SOLDIERS IN SAN ANTONIO TODAY

Special to The Telegram.

San Antonio, Texas, April 17.—The greatest military parade ever seen in the United States in time of peace will take place at 3 o'clock, April 18, when the entire army in camp at the military post under command of Generals Carter and Duncan will parade through the city of San Antonio as a military unit, equipped in every detail as for army service during actual hostilities. Nothing approaching this in magnitude has ever been seen in the United States since the days of the rebellion. The army that will march through the streets of the city will be greater in numbers than the insurgent forces of Mexico which are now in an armed dispute in that republic.

More than 18,000 men, infantry, cavalry, artillery, engineers, signal service, hospital corps, and mountain batteries will participate in this demonstration. In every sense of the word it will be a patriotic demonstration complimentary to the Battle of Flowers association that each year celebrates one of the turning points in the history of Texas—the memorable battle of San Jacinto—when the sturdy pioneers fired by the tune of an old love song and shouting "Remember the Alamo," "Remember Goliad", put to route the Mexican army under Santa Anna and thus forever made Texas free from foreign rule.

It is estimated that it will require three hours for the grand review to pass a given point. Governor Colquitt and other state officials, with those high in military circles, will review this parade from a stand erected on purpose for this occasion.

TEXAS T. P. A. MAN CANDIDATE FOR NATIONAL PRESIDENT

Special to The Telegram.

San Antonio, Texas, April 17.—A matter of vast importance to the T. P. A.—particularly the Texas division—is the fact that B. W. Michaux, a leading member of the Texas division, will be a candidate for national president of the association at the national convention in June. Mr. Michaux has been a prominent figure in the Texas division for years and has won national attention by his efforts in the interests of the association. He is an ex-state president of the Texas organization and was one of the prominent figures on the floor of the national convention at Chattanooga last year. He will enter the national convention this year, endorsed by a solid delegation from Texas and a number of other states. His prominence in T. P. A. work, standing as he always has as an advocate of everything for the benefit of the organization, and of general interest to the retail trade, has made him a power and given his efforts national significance.

GLANCE AT CAROLINA TEAMS BY CHARLOTTE SPORT WRITER

With the opening of the season only about ten days away, fans throughout the Carolina association are beginning to size up the prospective clubs that have been brought together in the six towns. The fact that the vast majority of the several teams have almost entirely changed men during the winter and will present new faces on the line-ups leaves satisfactory speculation as to the comparative strength of the clubs impossible. Four new managers will present themselves to the fans of the circuit at the opening, these being Manager Doyle of Greensboro; Manager Clancy of Winston; Manager Laval of Spartanburg and Manager Smith of Greenville. Only Manager Cross of Charlotte and Kelly of Anderson were held over for another battle in the association.

The fact that the measure of the abilities of the new managers in the league has not been taken and the strength of the new men they have brought together is so problematical that the situation is one that is thoroughly puzzling the prognosticators, leaving practically nothing upon which to judge the merits of the clubs in prospect.

Fight Will Be Interesting.

It is safe to predict, however, that the fight is going to be entertaining. This is said not in any indefinite way nor haphazardly as becomes one's duty in striving to stir up interest in the activities of the league. The reason that the teams will be composed almost entirely of new material tends to emphasize the fact that the race will be interesting. New faces are always attractive on a diamond in a minor league and there will be an abundance of these when the time comes for play.

Very few of the boys who have been performing in this circuit for the past season or two will again be seen in action. The managers went after new material and found it. Many of the older and better players could not be returned for the reason that their work entitled them to higher salaries than could be paid with a reduced salary limit of from $1,500 to $1,200. This reduction made it imperative that the managers go out into the highways and hedges for material upon which to construct a team.

Youngsters to the Fore.

Young baseball players always bring about a fast and exciting race. They play with all of their youthful enthusiasm and seem to inspire the fans with the idea that they are are playing to win games rather than to receive their monthly stipends. They get up more rivalry within themselves than the older heads that have been bumped about over the baseball world for several years, with their ups and downs, mostly downs, and who play in companies like this because their experience entitles them to a good-sized check. Witness the work of Stouch's Greenville players last year, a bunch of young, ambitious ball tossers who literally walked away with games by the sheer force of their enthusiasm on the field while other clubs, apparently more strong in offensive and defensive talent, were mowed down by the cavortings of these kids, as Stouch called them.

Clancy Is Formidable.

From a long distance way of looking at it, it appears that Manager Clancy is going to have a high-geared club this season and that for one time the Twins will not occupy that fifth place upon which they have been holding with something of the same tenacity that the Hornets clung to the cellar. Clancy is somewhat of a ball manager. He led the Fayetteville team in the Eastern Carolina to an easy triumph last season and gathered on the roster of that club some of the finest young baseball talent in any minor league.

He has been negotiating with many of these players to return to Winston-Salem for the new season and has been successful in securing the contracts of many of them. In addition to these, he has picked up some other talent, which according to reports, will cut something of a bleazing trail through this circuit. Winston is entitled to a good going club and the fans of the league will rejoice in the reward of the patience and perseverance of the backers of the Twin outfit by a club that gets in the running and stays there.

Laval Busy at Spartanburg.

Laval at Spartanburg is another genius in the way of picking up and developing ball players. He has had the largest paraphernalia of material to choose from of any manager in the company and has more coming up. Stevenson, who is studying medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, for two years the star third baseman of the Erksine College team, will report in May and so will Wideman, who was with the Spartans last season at the third corner and will undoubtedly hold his job again this year.

Spartanburg fans are enthusiastic over the prospects of Laval putting a winning club in action right from the start and Spartanburg is another one of those towns that, like Charlotte, deserves something for its contribution to the success of the league.

Kelly Is Saying Little.

Old Jim Kelly of Anderson is a sly fox when it comes to putting together fine baseball material at the early period of the season. Jim says mighty litle at any time, either before or after the season opens, but the record he has made during the two years he has been at the Electric City indicates that he knows what to do and when to do it in getting together baseball genius. Kelly is going to have another fighting club this year. He has returned but few of his old players, but he has some new stuff that he has been hammering down at Clinton, S. C., where he has been coaching his boys and the Presbyterian College of South Carolina team at the same time. Reports declare that his bunch is rapidly rounding up. Dick Smith at Greenville is a problem unsolved in this company and the Greenville papers have been saying little about his activities with the exception of denoting the arrival of certain players. The Spinners were late reporting this year and probably haven't yet gotten under way. Smith was assisted in signing men by President Lake Cely of the Greenville club, who knows a good deal about ball players himself.

Greensboro and Charlotte.

At Greensboro Doyle has been importing some new material to fill up the places that will not be taken by some of the men of last year's team. Wallace and Eldridge will be two of his main slabmen and Fuller, Doak, Rickard and Bentley will also return to take their old places. The Gate City ought to have another good club with careful manipulation o fthe men that Doyle has corraled.

And of Lave Cross, what need be said save that he is smiling and saying nothing as usual! The fans are assured from what they have witnessed of the work of the men that there has never been a better looking team in prospect than the one Cross has lined up. What the boys will do in the stress of battle remains to be seen and nobody around here that has taken a careful survey of the men in action have any grievous doubts about the success of the Hornets during the season of 1911, which is rapidly approaching. — Charlotte Observer.

HANDICAPPED

This is the Case With Many Greensboro People.

Too many Greensboro citizens are handicapped with a bad back. The unceasing pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and stooping or lifting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest and in the morning is stiff and lame. Plasters and liniments may give relief, but cannot reach the cause. To eliminate the pains and aches you must cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills help sick kidneys.

The following statement should convince every Greensboro reader of their efficiency.

F. C. Remfry, 512 S. Main St., High Point, N. C., says: "I was in such a miserable condition with kidney trouble that I did not believe there was any cure for me. My back and limbs were so sore that I could not get up after sitting without assistance and it was impossible for me to go about easily. The kidney secretions were also scanty and highly colored. I doctored and took medicine faithfully, but I did not improve. Finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills and the contents of three boxes made a permanent cure."

A Chorus Cried, Give Us Newbro's Herpicide.

This word of late has been in everyone's mouth, and many are wondering what the word signifies, though no one has yet been found, who will deny that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE does the work. Well, for the information of thousands of people who like to know all about a good thing, we would say that HERPICIDE means, a destroyer or killer of "Herpes." Now "Herpes" is the family name of a disease caused by various vegetable parasites. A similar microbe causes dandruff, itching scalp, and falling hair; this is the microbe that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE promptly destroys; after which the hair grows. Sold by leading druggists. CHAMP CLARK MAKES GOOD AS SPEAKER OF HOUSE

Missourian is Man for the Job---Priceless Documents of Government in Danger from Fire Taft Will Not Veto Tariff Legislation.

(By RALPH WHITESIDE.)
Special to The Telegram.

Washington, April 17.—Hon Champ Clark, speaker of the House of Representatives, has as his friends knew he would, made good as presiding officer of the house up to this time. It is true that he is like a young bear, all his troubdes are to come yet, when minority leader Mann and your Uncle Joe Cannon really got down to their knitting, but the Missourian has held the gavel long enough to show his metal and it rings true.

From present indications the Senate is the weak spot in the Democratic line. There are half dozen or so Senators strong men, who are apparently out of sympathy with the tariff policy of a majority of the party and it is not impossible that they will prevent the carrying out of the legislative program which has been agreed upon, time will show.

It is generally undestood now as I pointed out some time ago that President Taft will not use the veto on Democratic tariff legislation unless some comes through much more radical than now appears possible.

As a result of the recent disastrous fire at the New York State Capital Congress will be urged to provide means to place the many valuable records and documents in the various department buildings in fire proof cases.

At present all of the original copies of the United States Laws from the time of George Washington down to the present day are kept in wooden cases in rooms 305 and 307 of the State, War and Navy building. The wooden cases which contain these records of so priceless a value that all the money in the world could not replace them line the four sides of the room and extend from ceiling to the floor.

Besides containing all the original copies of the laws, bearing the signatures of the President, the Vice-President and the Speaker of the House, those combustible receptacles contain the original journal and all the original papers relating to the Constitution. They contain the original treaties, proclamations, executive orders and other original papers of international importance, for instance Lincoln's emancipation proclamation, written in longhand and bearing the martyred President's signature.

As a matter of fact about the only combustible material in the rooms where these documents are stored are the records which no amount of money can replace. The State, the War and Navy building is a fire-proof structure, so that the wooden cases and the parchment which bear the original statutes, proclamations, etc., are the only inflamable material.

The wooden cases were installed shortly after the big building had been constructed, and although repeated atmade it has always been impossible to secure an appropriation for them. It is claimed that fire-proof steel valuts are not necessary if fire-proof cases can be procured.

Other important records are kept in equally unsafe repositores in the other department buildings.

"Sounds good to me," remarked Senator John Sharpe Williams of Mississippi, when asked what he thought of the legislative program adopted by the Democratic caucus.

"I have been "fighting for six years for Canadian reciprocity," said the senator, but I do not think it should be loaded down with any other tariff measures. That would be discourtous to Canada. There is a comity between nations as between persons that ought to be observed. It would be like my invitating a person to dinner, provided the cook didn't kick for a raise in wages.

"As for the direct election of senators, I am in favor of that, and believe it will pass the senate, if it is not weighted with the amendments which made it impossible for Southern senators to veto for it at the last session. Nearly every State in the South already has laws for the direct election of senators.

"It is my humble opinion that the Senate will pass some of the tariff legislation which will come to it. We Democrats are standing with our hats in hand, and shall tell them that we will introduce any sort of a tariff measure they will vote for, provided it reduces the tariff. We are in the same position as the Irishman in Tipperary, who had a shillelah and kept hitting at his adversary's head. We have the House and we can keep on hitting.

"I am in favor also of the admission of Arizona and New Mexico. It's no business of the United States Senate what kind of a Constitution Arizona may want. Let them have their recall if they want it. The whole Democratic program looks good to me. There ought to be an investigation of the departments. I believe that when a stronger buys out a business he ought to take a look at the books; likewise, it is wise for us to take a look."

"With the Republican national convention more than a year off, several cities are already asking to be chosen for the event," remarked the Hon. Victor Rosewater, of Omaha, who is the Nebraska member of the Republican national committee.

"The first to put in a bid for the convention a long time in advance of the committee's meeting in December was Denver, and some arguments have already been sent to each member of the committee by citizens of the Colorado capital, who have not effected an actual organization, but who promise to do so in good time.

"Then, a number of letters, unofficial, of course, have come from distinguished citizens, both Republicans and Democrats, of St. Louis. Of course, it is quite the proper thing for the St. Louis applicants and supplicants to point with pride to the clever way they entertained the national convention in 1896, when McKinley was nominated, and the promise is made that even better treatment will be given next year.

"Chicago wants the convention, of course. That goes almost without saying, and all three cities will organize ton just as Congress convenes in regular cember, when the committee will meet to fix the time and place.

"It is the usual procedure to call a meeting of the committee in Washington just as Congress convents in regular session, and I suppose the old plan will be followed this year. It is convenient too, as many of the members are here anyhow, either as members of Congress or on other missions, and then we can call at the White House to be blessed by the Republican President."

FADS OF FASHIONS

The latest mode brings in a black velvet evening coat, with sailor collar and cuffs and long, tasseled revers of white ratine.

Spring predictions for tailor-made suits are: Jackets, 26 inches, half-fitting, tight at the hips, plain sleeves, broad collar, narrow and straight.

Some of the new shawl-shaped stoles are made of a new material, very much like plush, and they are usually seen in the soft taupe shades.

Many of the new laces show a combination of fleet and point de Venis. This last lace is extremely fashionable.

Collarless necks are used for lingerie dresses and blouses, and for certain of the silk gowns for daytime wear.

Short-waisted blouse coats are among early spring models. They are especially becoming to juniors and misses.

The note of black is very pronounced. It is seen in challies and organdies for misses and juniors, as well as for adults.

The metallic colors are among the most delightful of all for spring and summer hats—copper color, the bronzes in all their glory of green, bronze and reddish tints and tarnished silver all being especially effective in the new glazed straws and the ethereal-looking dresses, and they will be used in strong rivalry to the white and cream tints.

A new scarf is of mustard colored chiffon with ends and border of flowers in black velvet appliqued on it.

Bracelets of Russian enamel on silvery ground are quite new and come in the colors the boxes come in. Some are in medallion and link designs.

A stamp case in Russian enamel is on silvery ground with pink flowers.

A waterproof with pink parasol is one of the season's novelties. Of course, it is unlined.

The closing days of congress had at last arrived. Each member was bustling about attending to his pet measure.

The frequent and unsuccessful candidacy of certain men in this town for public office reminded George (Scotty) Dore of a story of his old friend Hogan.

"Hogan was raffling a clock," said Mr. Dore. "He was fairly successful in disposing of tickets in the shop where he worked, but he ran up against trouble when he canvassed his neighbors.

"Dropping in at a neighbor's house, he tried to sell a ticket on the clock.

cerning the Egyptian riots, and can not be relied upon to protect the canal."

In upholding the second proposition, "The United States doubts the neutralization policy so much that it has assumed the right and sole responsibility to fortify the canal, and in view of this, and that we are to keep it open to vessels of commerce and war, it is necessary to fortify it to make good the pledge.

In time of peace guaranteed neutrality would be easy, but how about in time of war without fortifications? Would it long be an international highway without force on our part? Clearly only an unparalleled event would such a state of affairs be, should there ever come a time when blockades and acts of war were preventable without fortifications.

Were we at war, international law would make us either close the canal or give the foe the same advantages we have, this making either act disadvantageous to us, getting no return for all these previously expended millions, and exposing our territory and interests. Are we then to surrender its entire military value? No, in thundering tones reverberating throughout the land, comes as a reply! And in stronger words from the president of the United States 'We are building the canal to help defend the country; not to help an enemy attack us."

In the third place, we are advocates of universal peace, but in our zeal for such an ideal state we must not overlook the possibility of war. President Taft and ex-President Roosevelt are advocates of peace, but they declare that fortifications are not out of harmony with the peace movement. Over two hundred of the congressmen that voted to fortify the canal are members of the International Peace Society.

In reference to arbitration, the treaty with England, the Monroe Doctrine, the very thing most likely to bring on war was expressly exempted. An arbitration court necessitates international preparation for war, for the court would be powerless to enforce its own decree. If some leading nation should rebel, the whole world would have to resort to force, the very thing you are trying to eliminate.

Thorough preparation for war is forced upon us; our leaders would be untrue to the American people and invite war and disaster, should they fail to make every necessary preparation for protection, for war has decreased as armament has increased and thorough preparation for war is the best guarantee of peace. Thus the conclusion from the foregoing propositions is that to fortify the canal is not only justifiable but imperative.

James Allan, Jr.'s Speech For Negative.

James Allan, Jr., opened for the negative, basing his argument upon the following:

There are three fundamental reasons why the Panama canal should be neutralized rather than fortified. In the first place its neutralization will protect its usage, its tolls and revenues more permanently and completely than can possibly accomplished by fortification. In the second place by neutralizing the canal we suffer no loss of strategic advantage and at the same time we are enabled to reserve our defensible energies for points nearer home. Finally to fortify the canal in the face of this nation's neutralization ideas is inconsistent and would, besides, be a criminal waste of the people's money.

M. S. Huske's Speech For the Negative.

Taking the matter from an international standpoint the canal should be neutralized by a treaty signed by all nations, similar to that of the Suez canal. There are three reasons for neutralizing the canal. First it has been the policy of the United States for half a century that any canal across an isthmus should be neutralized and not fortified. Many leading statesmen have most forcibly declared for this as I will show you. The United States cannot in honor to herself and in justice to the world repudiate a policy of patriotism for a new policy of insane and unjustified militaryism. Second, even were we to adopt the untenable theory of military policy that a fortified canal would be of service in time of war, which my colleague has conclusively proved is without foundation, we would still believe those gigantic fortifications are unjustifiable because of the improbability of war between the United States and any great nation. I will read you some statistics from leading authorities, including Champ Clark, in support of this contention. In the third place America's position in the move for international arbiatration and universal peace demands that we do not throw down a challenge of war to other nations of the world by erecting fortifications on an international pathway of commerce, but her position as a leader in the peace movement demands that we neutralize the Panama canal.

The Rejoinders.

The rejoinders were quite spirited. James Allan led with a six minute talk for the negative, being followed by S. C. Hilliard for the affirmative. M. S. Huske made the final rejoinder for the negative, while J. Ben Eller closed for the affirmative. The chief marshals then waited on the judges who returned sealed decisions without consultation and President Hood announced the decison.

CHILDREN GAY ON EASTER DAY

It is an interesting study to note the gradual change which takes place in the observance of a popular holiday. The very word is significant. In the beginning all festivals were religious ceremonies, and the days upon which they were celebrated were "holy days," which by corruption became the "holiday" of the present time.

Nor was this the only change. In heathen times, with few exceptions, the festivals were merry ones, marked with wine, flowers and dancing, whereas the holy days of the early Christians were tinctured with sadness. Some of this gloom clung to church festivals until within comparatively modern times and only of late has disappeared. Now the popular meaning of a holiday is one devoted to music and merriment, good living and good cheer.

That the world is the better for such a change there can be no doubt. When people find that to be good does not necessarily mean to be grave or that an upright life is not incompatible with jollity more people will be good. Children learn this lesson much more quickly than adults, and therefore the children of the present day are peculiarly fortunate, because austerity is no longer a part of religion.

It happens that Easter is doubly blessed in this respect, because it has always marked the close of a penitential season and typifies new life and gladness and also because it has always been a day which children have celebrated. In the processions which in some countries mark the observance of the festival children take a prominent part. In Germany there are special games for Easter day, and even in this country we have adopted the pleasing custom of giving presents, making visits and interchanging little courtesies which tend to make life happier.

With each passing year Easter is coming more into popular favor, not only with church members of all denominations, but with people who regard the day solely as one of good cheer. There are all too few such holidays in our national life, and the growth of Easter in general esteem is therefore a cause for congratulation.

At this distant day it does not really matter how the festival originated any more than the exact date of Christmas. The day itself and the event it commemorates are alone of importance, and the way the day is celebrated is of more importance than all. When any day is looked forward to and anticipated with joy by the children we may be sure that it will not fall into popular disfavor. It might be possible to make young people simulate grief, but they cannot successfully counterfeit joy.

"Tomorrow is Easter!" the children cry joyfully, and the Easter dawn is greeted with equal gladness. It is not, at least in this country, because of the colored eggs or the pretty presents or even the lesson of the day so much as because of the general joyousness which seems to pervade the very air. The people one meets on the street wear smiling faces, the bells ring out in quicker time and clearer melody, and there is a contagion of happiness which young people are the first to feel.

Easter and spring go hand in hand. Each is the harbinger of new life to earth and man, and each is blessed for the pure and simple happiness it brings.

Under an Old Oak Tree.

Many years ago two small Russian boys buried a green hobbyhorse under an oak with such solemn rites as their childish imagination suggested. They believed that when the horse was disinterred the reign of happiness would begin. One of the boys, who died recently a sad and disappointed old man, was buried at his own request beneath the same oak under which he had his youthful dream. His name was Tolstoy.

Cost of Air Travel.

The average cost of air travel is $15 a mile, it is calculated by Bleriot, as against a cent a mile by trolley, 2 cents a mile by railroad train and 25 cents a mile by high power automobiles. Large aeroplanes cost from $3,500 to $6,000. A shed to house them cannot be built for less than $750. A mechanic at $3 to $5 a day is another necessity, and perhaps a watchman at $2 a day.

GULLING THE PUBLIC.

Seductive Methods of the Get-rich-quick Grafters.

In an article in the Metropolitan Magazine, describing the get-rich-quick graft, Karl Decker quotes a successful operation in this field of endeavor as follows:

"I paid $1,000 for a particularly good list of 100,000 names of investors in gold mining stocks, and $2,000 was spent in postage in getting my literature to my list of investors. Another $1,000 went for printing and office expenses before I was ready to start my agents out.

"In all I had spent $6,750 in preliminary expenses, but I knew it was a good graft and that the money would come back. In a short time my preliminary expenses ran to $10,000 through advances to agents, for I selected the best men I could find and told them to get results, no matter what the cost.

"Inside of two months I had taken in $37,000 after deducting agents' commissions. I paid dividends of 2 per cent a month, juggling the bullion returns so as to make it seem that the dividends were legitimate. That concern ran nineteen months, during which time I took in over $300,000 clear after agents' commissions and dividends had been deducted."

Defends the Harem Skirt.

Dr. Berg, a Swedish practitioner in Paris, has rushed to the defense of the harem skirt. He recently astonished a gathering of his professional brethren by declaring: "The harem skirt has its advantages. It is an ideal garment for women. It is doubly practical because it protects the body from cold and allows free motion to the limbs. It is also a defense against dust and the microbes that float in the air. Numbers of women have been drowned because their movements in the water were hampered by skirts. Others were burned on account of their flowing robes, and the harem skirt wards off all these dangers."

Good Eating.

Reginald De Koven, at his daughter's wedding breakfast in New York, praised the appetite of musicians. "Being fine, healthy fellows," he said, "musicians always have good appetites. You know, perhaps, what Rossini once declared.

"'If I am to dine on roast turkey,' said Rossini, 'there should be only two at table—myself and the turkey. If, however, it is a question of grilled chicken, then the company should number three—myself and two chickens.'"

Patriots Broke Even in Double Header at Lynchburg

Special to Telegram.

Lynchburg, Va., April 17.—The Greensboro team defeated the Lynchburg team this afternoon, after losing a close game to the locals in the morning. The score was 8 to 6.

The Shoemakers played the most ragged game of the exhibition series, piling up seven errors, which accounts for five of their scores. Brooks held the visitors well in hand for five innings and retired in favor of Chewning, who yielded three hits in succession, and Bruck succeeded him. But for Wells' failure to field Doyle's hit in the seventh, which went for a triple, the four runs of that inning would not have scored:

The shoemakers snatched the morning game out of the fire in the ninth, batting three runs over with only one man out. Both games were played in widy, cold weather.

Score by innings of afternoon game:
Lynchburg .. .. 000 012 120—6

For Whitsett—Pickard knocked a home run and Carroll got two two-baggers and Ferry Greeson one. Ray in the box sustained his fine record.

For Jamestown, Grubbs, late of Greensboro league, was the star, with Pat Murrow a close second. Batteries, Whitsett, Ray and Young; Jamestown, Short and Futrell.

Dinner in Honor Mr. W. B. S. Winans

In the dining room of the Guilford hotel Monday evening the office force and department heads of the Public Service Company banqueted the retiring auditor of the Company, W. B. S. Winans. It was a fitting farewell from his business associates and evidenced their appreciation of the retiring official and their recognition of the helpfulness of personal and business contact with him. In point of service Mr. Winans was the oldest member of the present organization. His services were secured by W. N. Coler & Company as an expert accountant when the properties of the Greensboro Electric Company were purchased. He was secured because of ability as an organizer and to perfect the details of reorganization. Mr. Winans' work with the company proved conclusively that no mistake was made in selecting him for this difficult task.

Mr. Winans leaves Greensboro to accept a splendid position in New York, and goes away from this city with the assurance that he has won a host of friends here in addition to winning the friendship of his business associates.

Following the banquet last night Mr. Winans was presented with a handsome sterling silver carving set, a gift from the employes of the Public Service Company. He accepted the gift in an appropriate speech and short informal talks weer made by several members of the organization.

Whales In Nets.

Just south of the Bay of Islands, New Zealand, where in a landlocked harbor beautiful Wangamumu nestles in the shadow of Cape Brett, there is established a whaling station, and here is carried on the unique business of catching whales by means of nets set in a narrow channel between rugged rocks. The cetaceans frequent this passage, it is said, to rub off the accumulation of sea growing parasites gained in long journeys through deep water.
